BRAKEMAN IS ROASTED TO DEATH IN WRECKAGE

Tunnel Between Corum and Keswick Caves in on Freight Train

MEMBER OF CREW IS HELD PRISONER

Begs Bystanders to Kill Him as He Sees Flames Reaching Him

REDDING, Nov. 1.—Conductor Edward F. Richardson of Dunsmuir was instantly killed and brakeman Charles Neate was burned to death in the wreckage of the rear part of a freight train on the Southern Pacific, which was caved upon early today in a tunnel midway between Keswick and Corum.

Brakeman Neate, inextricably fastened in the wreckage, remained conscious, and when he saw the flames from the burning freight cars creeping near, he begged bystanders to cut off his legs to free him from the twisted rods that held him down, but they were powerless to help him.

BURNED TO DEATH. The flames crept nearer and nearer and finally incinerated the doomed man, while the other members of the train crew stood by in a state of helplessness.

The wreck was caused by the caving in of Tunnel No. 1, midway between Keswick and Corum on the rear of the north bound freight train No. 212.

ALMOST COMPLETELY BURIED. The caboose occupied by Conductor Richardson and brakeman Neate was almost completely buried under a mass of caved sand rocks and with the overturning of the stove, the wrecking immediately caught fire.

The track was torn up for over a hundred feet at the wreck and as it is impossible to build a track around the tunnel, traffic on the Shasta line will be tied up until tomorrow and possibly later.

FIRE BURNS THREE HOURS. The timbers in the west end of the tunnel were burned and the train was not under control until three hours after the cave-in occurred.

Conductor Richardson and family in Dunsmuir and Neate had a wife living in Alaska.

KILLS SELF AS HER MOTHER DID

Oregon Girl Drinks Acid on Anniversary of Parent's Rash Act

PORTLAND, Or., Nov. 1.—In the same room in which seventeen years ago her mother committed suicide by drinking the contents of a two ounce vial of carbolic acid, Elsie Lewis, 20 years old, the pretty daughter of Leonard Lewis of Russellville was today found in a dying condition while at her side lay a bottle of the same fiery liquid with which her mother ended her life. The girl died shortly after being found. The same physician who seventeen years ago attended her mother labored to save the girl's life. Melancholia which caused the mother to end her life, also caused the girl to seek death.

The girl's suicide is almost similar in every detail with that of her mother. The latter became afflicted with melancholia several days before taking her life. The daughter had been morose for several days. On the same bed which is a family bedroom, the unconscious body of the girl was found. The body of the mother was found on the same bed years ago.

Other coincidences in the attempted suicide is the fact that the girl bought the acid which she drank at the same drugstore from which her mother obtained the deadly potion. It was the anniversary of her mother's death seventeen years ago yesterday.

Miss Lewis is said to have become melancholy over a love affair several days ago and threatened to take her life. She had been watched closely but evaded members of the family who feared she would take her life.

SPENDS $20,000 ON COURTING CLOTHES

Gives Fortune for a Wardrobe So His Impression Might Be Favorable

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—One of the absorbing topics of interest in smart circles both here and abroad is the announcement of the rumored engagement of Marjorie Gould, the beautiful daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Gould to Prince Alexander Romanoffsky of Russia.

Negotiations were it is said, opened at the Hotel Ritz in Paris when Baron de Fernillet, meeting George Gould, assured him that the prince would consider it a great honor to be allied with his family. Miss Gould according to rumor, sacrificed her delight at a royal suitor's attention and for the past few months they have been seen much together.

RIVAL TO PRINCE. However, it is said that the prince finds her a serious rival in his business the Duke of Leuchtenberg who is a Prince and cousin of the Czar of Russia.

It is descended from Eugene de Beauharnais the son of the Empress Josephine by her first marriage. Eugene married the Grand Duchess Marie Nikolaevna, daughter of the Czar Nicholas I of Russia. The title of Duke of Leuchtenberg was given him by Napoleon I.

It is expected that the Duke will also visit this country before long and the almost incredible statement is made that he has expended $20,000 on his wardrobe with a view to making a suitable impression on his future bride.

The Duke's wardrobe are non-committal and Miss Marjorie serene in the confidence that belongs to one of the person's of the aristocracy is waiting to receive the rubrics of the "dark kingdom," and it would seem, to accord them both an equal chance to win her vast fortune.

SCOLDED WIFE SHOTS SELF THROUGH HEAD

Husband Upbraided Her for Failure to Have Noon Lunch Ready

SILVA AS ANGRY SPOUSE LEAVES HOUSE

Dies on Operating Table at Hospital—Abuser Crazed With Grief

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1.—Because her husband upbraided her at noontime today for not having his lunch ready, Mary Silva, 27 years of age, deliberately shot herself in the temple and died on the operating table of the Central emergency hospital, to which she was carried by the police.

Nicholas Silva, the husband, is a carpenter. The family beside the mother and father consists of two children, one of whom is 3 years old and the other 4 months. Silva is so nearly prostrated from remorse and grief that the police have been unable to learn only a few meager details of the happening. The couple lived at No. 262 Mississippi street.

Silva as it is as it can be learned came home promptly at noon time and found that there was no lunch prepared. The only excuse offered was a story by the wife that she was sick and had been unable to get through with all of her work and attend to the small baby who was ailing.

None of these excuses were satisfactory to the husband who at once flew into a fit of anger. The more he upbraided his wife, the angrier he grew and the fact that after the first outburst she would make no reply only aroused him more and he said many harsh and cruel things.

"I'm going out to a restaurant to get my dinner," shouted the man, "and I want you to know that I am very tired of this sort of thing. It is your duty to get me things to eat and you don't do it."

HEARS PISTOL SHOT

With this parting statement the man slammed the door of their cottage hard enough to almost send it off the hinges and was just getting ready to slam the gate to the front yard when he heard a pistol shot. Running back into the house he found his wife lying on the floor of the kitchen with a stream of blood coming from her temple and a revolver lying on the floor beside her. The baby was crying and the 3 year old child was trying to arouse his mother.

Silva threw himself on the body of his wife and it was his cries of grief and his appeals to his wife to speak to him and to forgive him his angry words that attracted the neighbors to the house.

Half an hour later the woman died on the operating table at the hospital without recovering consciousness.

GEORGE GRAY ON WITNESS STAND

Both Sessions Are Devoted to Examination of Ex-Official

At the trial of John S. De Lancy in the criminal department of the superior court, former Public Administrator George Gray was the only witness today, both morning and afternoon sessions being devoted to his cross-examination by Attorney Chapman.

During the forenoon session there were several fits between opposing counsel over some of the questions put to Gray. The defense succeeded in getting in some important testimony with reference to claims De Lancy made against Gray, amounting to $12,926.12, when the former Public Administrator was trying to get a settlement with him to help square accounts.

Gray admitted that all the while District Attorney Donahue was helping him to get Public Administrator funds out of De Lancy's hands, after the second broker, his former legal representative was holding against him $4926.12 which he claimed Gray owed him for money advanced by him in the conduct of the office and $8000 due as attorney's fees from estates.

TESTIMONY IS ADMITTED. Witness stated that during all the time that the district attorney was helping him to get back estate funds withheld, he had never informed Donahue that De Lancy held these claims over him (Gray) nor that he ever told the district attorney that his own attorney, J. W. Binghamman, had finally advised him to acknowledge the claim for $4926.12, and that he had taken the advice and credited the accused lawyer with that amount in the settlements.

The prosecution fought to have that portion of the testimony relating to the advice that Binghamman gave Gray credited as hearsay evidence, but the court overruled the objection.

GRAY'S CROSS-EXAMINATION. Attorney Chapman continued the cross-examination of former Public Administrator George Gray when Judge Brown ordered the trial to proceed this afternoon.

Gray said that while De Lancy was acting as his legal representative he (Gray) collected fees accruing from estates from time to time, but that they were never credited to any particular estate, but to the Public Administrator's general fund. Witness said that whenever he wanted money from this source he would ask De Lancy for it, but that he never went over the details of fees with defendant nor computed them with him, and that he never had a clear idea of Gray's fees as accounts were stood with the office.

Before drawing fees he would always advise with De Lancy about it, and that defendant would always say, "Yes, that is all right; you can have the money," or words to that effect.

DRAWING HIS FEES. Chapman: What did De Lancy say to you when you told him you wanted to draw your fees?

Gray: He would say, "Yes, that is all right."

Chapman: Have you the return checks with which you drew your fees from the general fund?

Gray: No sir.

Chapman: You always drew your fees by check, did you not?

Gray: No. I used to take the bank book to the bank, draw the money I wanted and the amount would be entered in the bank book.

Chapman: Can you designate these entries?

Gray: No, I can't do that.

Chapman: Do you know of any record having been kept by any person of these fees drawn by you?

Gray: No sir.

Chapman: Have you any papers or records to show the amount of fees collected by you while you were Public Administrator and this defendant represented you?

Gray: Nothing but the deposit books before you.

Chapman: You always drew his fees from the Bank of Haywards and the Oakland Bank of Savings, but that when he said their total amount was about $12,000 he was simply guessing—that he had no authentic record to substantiate this intimate record to show in detail these transactions.

With reference to the check Gray received from De Lancy for $10,374.40 by way of settlement, witness said that he also received other checks, bringing the total amount paid over to about $15,000.

Witness said that at the time of his settlement with De Lancy on August 19th, and that De Lancy claimed attorney's fees. He said he tried to get De Lancy to make a settlement, but could not.

SETTLEMENT DEMAND. Regarding the conversation that occurred between Gray and De Lancy in the latter's office on August 21st, in the presence of the district attorney, when he made a written demand upon defendant for a settlement, witness said that De Lancy told him (Gray) that he would get everything coming to him, and that was about all that was said.

Chapman: At this time did you tell the district attorney anything about De Lancy's claim against you for $4926.12 and attorney's fees for $8000?

Gray: No sir.

Chapman: You never told Mr. Donahue before that time about the claims, did you?

Gray: No sir.

Chapman: So far as you know, Mr. Donahue did not know at that time that there was anything to be done but to get all the money due to the Public Administrator from this defendant, and that he did not know about this claim against you?

Gray: Yes, sir, but I didn't know why De Lancy had that charge against me.

Chapman: Don't you know that your attorney, Mr. Binghamman, had decided that you should allow De Lancy a credit for $4926.12, and that you did so in effecting a settlement with this defendant?

Gray: Yes sir.

Orpheum Bill This Week Proves Whirlwind of Great Funmakers

RUBYN THORPE, leading woman with George Bloomquest, at the Oakland Orpheum.

There was a veritable sale of gaiety at the Oakland Orpheum yesterday. Comedy was king on the stage. Not in many a long day has the Orpheum show gone at such a furious whirlwind pace. There are some of the greatest knock-out comedians in the world in this week's bill. There are also some very clever singing and dancing comedians, besides a sketch called "Nerve," which is a crack-jack, some musical features which are also very clever, acrobats who come close to being the best in the world in their line, and a number of great singers in the persons of the Tusany Troubadours. Altogether it is a great show of a sort that is calculated to peck the Orpheum to the doors.

HOWARDS ARE BACK. Eugene and Willie Howard returned to a big welcome. They will be remembered by many as the youngsters who appeared here last year as "The Messenger and the Theban." Willie Howard, the Hebrew messenger boy, is a wonderfully original comedian, a rouser with a sweet singing voice and a personality that wins the crowd wherever he goes. Yesterday the Howard boys sang and danced and talked and were enjoyed and called back so often that the entire show was delayed while the audience tried to indicate its mad desire for more of the Howard brand of fun.

Marquette and Sylvester also stirred up a gala of excitement. These two boys are knock-out comedians, who fall in and out of chairs, tables and other articles of furniture and indulge in a series of bumps that would put an average man completely out of business.

Lancey when he asked you for the $4926.12 that you had to give the Bank of Haywards sixty days' notice before you could get it?

Gray: Something like that.

Chapman: Did you ever account to De Lancy for that money before the 13th day of October?

Gray: No sir.

Witness said that all the money he had in deposit were trust funds and that he had drawn checks against these funds for his own private business, but this was always done with De Lancy's knowledge and consent. He said that he could not produce any of these checks, that they were never shown to De Lancy and that the only record he had of these transactions was the deposit books which are in evidence.

Chapman: Did you ever draw money for your private use without the knowledge of this department?

Gray: No sir.

Witness explained that all of his fees were kept in the accounts of the Public Administrator and that consequently when he drew his check for money for private use it was in usage and effect simply drawing against his fees in the trust accounts. He had never drawn any fees against any particular individual estate, but against all the fees in the aggregate.

GRAY IS IGNORANT. Gray testified that all he knew about the preparation of the semi-annual reports was that De Lancy had told him he did the work. Witness said that he did not know that Miss Stevenson, De Lancy's stenographer, had prepared the semi-annual report for the period ended December 31, 1908. He did not know that other persons prepared the documents and always believed that De Lancy performed this duty. Because he had said so and because it was his work.

Chapman: Now, Mr. Gray, after refreshing your memory, is it not a fact that you employed A. J. Flood and paid his salary?

Gray: No sir. I did not.

Chapman: Didn't you employ him and pay him a portion of his salary as clerk?

Gray: No sir, I did not.

Court adjourned at noon until 2 o'clock this afternoon.

THEATER MANAGER ACTED UNDER MAYOR'S PERMIT

Police Judge Mortimer Smith this morning on motion of Prosecuting Attorney Ezra Decoto dismissed the charge of violating the child labor law against W. J. Chulligan, proprietor of the Gaiety Theater. He was accused by Deputy Labor Commissioner Riley of San Francisco of employing Anita Marshall, a 9-year-old girl, to sing illustrated songs. The law provides that a minor child under the age of 12 years cannot appear in public. Chulligan showed that he had the permission of the mayor. Judge Smith pointed out that the authority of the mayor to issue such permits was limited to entertainments not of a public nature, such as a theater is. Both Prosecuting Attorney Decoto and Deputy Labor Commissioner Riley agreed with his honor that the mayor did not have any authority to issue a permit to a theater. But inasmuch as Mr. Chulligan had tried to comply with the law as he saw it, a motion to dismiss the case was entertained by the court.

Mayor Mott on being informed by Prosecuting Attorney Decoto that he had exceeded his authority in the matter immediately revoked the permit.

TALK WATERWAYS TO THE DELEGATES

Taft's Good Advice Seems to Have Been Sewn in a Fertile Spot

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 1.—The principal features of the Lake to the Gulf Deep Waterways Convention today were the addresses of Secretary of War Dickinson and Gifford Pinchot Chief of the United States Forestry service. The various questions in connection with the improvement of the Mississippi River and its tributaries were discussed by the delegates. During the discussion the convention presented a given more animated scene than that which characterized it when President Taft was the principal speaker on the first day. Sentiment apparently was divided. Some showed a marked disposition to follow closely the advice of President Taft and decide what was feasible before going ahead on the work. Some believed it was best to work for nine feet but the majority clinging to the old slogan "fourteen feet through the valley."

MAKE CHANGES IN HOSPITAL SERVICE

Dr. Pinkham Put in Charge—Former Delays Will Be Done Away With

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1.—The local emergency hospital service underwent a change of management when Dr. Charles B. Pinkham assumed the role of chief surgeon, taking the place of Dr. Wallace I. Terry, who has been in charge for the past two years. The change is an important one inasmuch as the operations which have been recently performed at Lane Hospital will hereafter occur at the Central emergency hospital, where, for a long time, every convenience and appliance has been in use.

Considerable criticism has attached to the previous administration by reason of the fact that patients suffering from gun shot wounds and fractured skulls were hustled into the emergency hospital and bumped over the cobblestones on a two-mile run to another hospital before being operated upon. Dr. Pinkham will change that and on the occasion of an operation being necessary it will be immediately performed at the Central emergency.

A number of alterations have been switched around from one hospital to another for the good of the service.

NEW STORE ON SAN PABLO AVE.

The Opening of the Swellton Adds Another High Class Business to This Popular Avenue.

M. STEIN, Proprietor The Swellton.

What is considered one of the finest apparel stores on the coast is now open for business under the name of "The Swellton" at 1215 San Pablo Avenue, by Mr. M. Stein.

"The Swellton," as Mr. Stein says, is a new store with new ideas, and it is without doubt the best business of its kind in the city.

Not one detail which would go toward making "The Swellton" both beautiful and modern has been overlooked. The rich interior finish, the immense windows and artistic arrangements of the different departments show the best of taste for decorating and construction.

A feature of the establishment is its splendid, handsome and comfortable department. It is equipped with such departments as a reception hall for customers with desks, writing materials and telephones, where friends may meet and rest, is another attraction.

The millinery department is one of the largest in the city, occupying one-fourth of the floor space.

The cloak and suit departments also occupy considerable space, and are arranged on new lines, the garments being kept in dust and moth-proof cases.

The waist department also is in accordance with the general beauty of the store and is conveniently arranged.

IMMENSE CROWDS CHEER HEARST FOR 32 MINUTES 40,000 Fight in Vain for Admission Into Madison Square Garden--The Campaign Closes

NEW YORK, November 1.—New York's mayoralty campaign will be carried right up to election eve and tonight speeches in various parts of the city will be made by Otto T. Bannard, Republican nominee for Mayor, and Judge Gaynor, who heads the Democratic ticket.

William R. Hearst, leader of the Civic Alliance, closed his campaign last night with the meeting in Madison Square Garden.

At Tammany Hall today the leaders of the Tammany districts gathered at noon and received their final instructions from Leader Murphy. The latter said today that Judge Gaynor would be elected without any doubt. He predicted that Hearst would run second.

Herbert Parsons, who has charge of the Republican campaign, said that Bannard would be elected by 70,000 over Gaynor and by 120,000 over Hearst. He predicted an overwhelming plurality for the rest of the Republican-Fusion ticket.

The Hearst forces declare the Gaynor campaign has completely collapsed and that Hearst will be elected by a tremendous vote.

The weather forecast for tomorrow indicates rain.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—William Randolph Hearst closed his campaign last night at Madison Square Garden, closed it before the greatest crowd that ever jammed into the old building to hear a man speak—closed it with forty thousand persons tugging and begging at the police lines two blocks from the entrance—closed it with Madison Square itself black with disappointed people, who had waited for hours only to listen at a distance to the thunder from the inside of the building when Mr. Hearst stepped upon the platform.

Station forward persons were under the roof when a flying wedge of big traffic policemen brought Mr. Hearst into the building and from the time his head was seen at the door, the cheering lasted thirty-two minutes—the greatest personal tribute ever given a man without a political machine behind him.

It was literally the sight of a lifetime, and will be remembered as something entirely without precedent—a tremendous outpouring of public sentiment in the city of the prince, and a man who has been hammering away for years.

CROWD IN FRENZY. At 9:25 o'clock Charles Sprague Smith brought Charles Whitman to the front and introduced him to the next district attorney. Cheers followed the announcement, and Whitman stood smiling and bowing for almost two minutes. From the west entrance there came a shrill cheer, which broke through all other sounds, and Mr. Smith, on the platform, seized Whitman's elbow and pointed toward the Madison Square entrance.

CHEERING GREETS HEARST. Like a flash the great crowd came to its feet. The thousands in the balconies leaped over, and through the tussling mass, a glimpse of a compact body of men in blue charging down the aisles. Those on the ground floor saw nothing but a great expanse of waving hats, hands holding hats, flags and banners.

It was necessary to sweep the aisles before Mr. Hearst could reach the platform, and then for the first time the full volume of the cheering broke out. Inspector McCluskey, in charge of the five policemen detailed to handle the crowds, had headed the charge into the hall. He saw the feet of the steps and wiped a face.

GREATEST ON RECORD. "The greatest crowd I ever saw in my life," said he. Looking out over the crowd it seemed that every man in the building was on his feet, cheering and waving something. The cheering had steadied into a terrific howling roar, and over all the hats were waving. Women waved their veils or their handkerchiefs. Men stubbed the air with their fingers and waved up and down on their chairs. A national convention just after the naming of the candidate might have been dropped in the midst of the tumult and lost.

Twelve minutes it lasted and then the great orchestra of 150 voices broke into a march. One man in the gallery reached down and taking hold of the great flag draped along the edge of the railing, waved it in time to the thump of the drum, which was all that could be heard.

FLAG WAVE. In two minutes every man who could reach one of the hundreds of flags was waving it in time to the music and the cheering rose until even the drum was swallowed up.

At eleventh minutes the orchestra gave up breathing as it was to cease. Two minutes the tramping began and the old cheer of other campaigns: "Hearst! Hearst! Hearst! Hearst!"

Young men in the body of the house were standing on their chairs waving their arms like yells leaders at a football game. One woman near the press stand patted her mouth as she cheered, giving a shrill Indian warwhoop, which was taken up by others and then lost in the din which greeted Mr. Hearst's first attempt to gain a hearing.

At twenty-three minutes the orchestra tried it again and found it hopeless as before. On the platform Charles Sprague Smith was swinging a flag and thousands were cheering in time as musicians followed the strokes of the baton.

It was thirty-two minutes from the first cheer until Mr. Smith was heard in the Cooper Union plea for "order" and then more "order!"

When Mr. Hearst began to speak and instead of calling them ladies and gentlemen, he said "My friends," and with one last sharp cheer the crowd settled down to listen.

Last night's gathering was recorded in the light of a test. One great politician had said $100,000 worth of Madison Square Garden in which to hold a meeting, and had withdrawn at the last moment, fearing a political fiasco.

Men used to feeling the political pulse of the conduct of campaign crowds were amazed beyond words, and on every side the question was asked: "What does it mean? What will happen next Tuesday?"

Old independence League men who had fought through three campaigns were ready to answer them. "Just a landslide."

Madame Rita Fornia, sang the grand aria from "Il Trovatore," and was brought back again and again until she graciously consented to give an encore, and then came Madame Olga Frensted, who was recognized and cheered as she entered the hall.

HEARST'S SPEECH. Mr. Hearst said: "My friends. The campaign is over and this is not to my mind, a political meeting, but a patriotic meeting. I am not here to tell any man how to vote, but merely to urge him to consider the interests of the state, to rise above party feeling and to do his patriotic duty.

McENERNEY BACK FROM EUROPE, MUCH IMPROVED

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Garret McEnerney, the San Francisco attorney, accompanied by Mrs. McEnerney, arrived here from Europe on the liner America, after a three-months tour of the continent. McEnerney's trip was solely in search of recreation and health, and he says he achieved his object.

The McEnerneys journeyed leisurely by motor car and train through the principal countries of Europe and covered in all several thousand miles.

The America looked like a personally conducted California excursion as she warped into her pier yesterday. In addition to the McEnerneys the following Californians were seen along her decks: Mr. and Mrs. C. O. G. Miller and family, Mrs. Robert Watt, Mrs. Louis Greenbaum and family, Baron J. F. Von Schoeder and son, Dr. Jacob Barth, all of San Francisco, and Mr. and Mrs. George Station of Oakland.

CANADA IS LOSING HER TRADE

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 1.—The loss of her hold on the production of Canadian cheese, is approximately $1,000,000 a year, but the price received for the cheese is only $1.00 a pound. In explaining this enormous loss, the Canadian cheese exporters say that the cheese, due to a considerable increase in New Zealand's production, is being sold in New Zealand at $1.00 a pound, which is only $1.00 a pound. New Zealand's cheese placed the Canadian market in a position where the loss is this true of the cheese as the New Zealand cargoes there.

Maintenance of the Boulevard.

The automobile road race at New York for the Vanderbilt cup signally failed to overcome the record of 64.51 miles per hour established on the foothill Boulevard and San Leandro county road on Oakland day, although a greater number of autos of larger size and horse-power made the effort. The winner of the Vanderbilt cup covered the 278.08 miles of the course in 4 hours, 25 minutes and 42 seconds, or at the average rate of thirty miles per hour. The world's record for speed established on the Greater Oakland course by the Pope-Hartford auto driven by Fleming was 64.51 miles per hour—or, in other words, a speed practically four and one-half miles faster than the Vanderbilt cup winner.

This comparison of results on the two courses is a wonderfully complimentary tribute to the excellent condition of the Foothill Boulevard as well as that of the San Leandro county road, and is one of the biggest advertisements that Alameda county and Oakland have ever had, as it has carried their fame abroad to every nook and corner of the civilized world. The world-breaking record of Oakland's Portola day has also had the effect of making the Foothill Boulevard more popular than ever among motorists. It will doubtless be the scene of increased auto traffic throughout the winter and fall, therefore, be subject to heavier wear-and-tear than it has been hitherto. It is taken for granted that the Board of Supervisors will not allow its surface to deteriorate, but will take special pains to keep it in standard condition. A timely top-dressing and subsequent rolling will accomplish the desired result at a minimum expense. Evidently, now is the proper time to do this before the rainy season advances. By so doing the opening of the spring season will find the boulevard in prime condition. If the work of top-dressing is delayed, however, there is serious danger that the surface of the roadway will seriously deteriorate under the softening influence of the winter rains. "A stitch in time saves nine" is an old adage that exactly fits the case in point.

Oakland's salt water fire protection auxiliary is coming infectious. Alameda is waking up to blue and planning a similar system of its own.

An attachment levied by a creditor on the gold in a debtor's teeth will certainly be a novel civil procedure; but it seems to be by a decision rendered last week in the debtor's court in Chicago. The more perplexing feature in the case, however, remains to be solved—namely, how execution of judgment can be effectively carried out. In the event it is rendered, if the delinquent debtor—a woman in the case at issue—closes her jaws firmly against it. The sheriff will certainly have to resort to use of force and do any personal violence to the owner of the teeth.

It is the duty of every citizen who has the welfare of Oakland at heart to boost for the water front improvement and new city hall bonds. Their issuance is in the direct line of progress and their investment as planned will pave the way to certain prosperity, help along the annexation of new territory and make the commercial future of Oakland absolutely secure.

The Pacific Coast steamship President has proved true to the superstition of the sea regarding the unlucky character of her name by grounding on the mud flat off Black Point. Since the first steamship bearing the name foundered in mid-ocean on her first trans-Atlantic voyage, every pul on board being lost and not a vestige of the vessel ever recovered, sailors have been shy of the name. No class of men is so superstitious as seafarers. The fo'castle has a long list of what it calls unlucky names, among them being the Great Republic, Boston and Golden Gate, all vessels so named, according to fo'castle traditions, having come to a bad end.

Most people have become so familiar with the extraordinary growth of population in Oakland and its suburbs that they have totally lost sight of the fact that new building which caused so much astonishment immediately after the San Francisco quake and fire three and one-half years ago, is quite as great today as it was then, but it is going on quietly and with so little tooting of horns that it has ceased to be regarded as anything more than a matter of course.

Stockton's "Forty-nine" carnival closed Saturday night. The week's festivities were the greatest success ever before experienced in that progressive city. Stockton has been growing rapidly of late years as a railroad and distributing center which has been enhanced by the fact that it is the present head of navigation on the San Joaquin river. The city owes its birth to the opening of the so-called "Southern mines" in the days of forty-nine. The past week's celebration was devoted to a reproduction of the scenes which attended the rush of gold-seekers in early days and as commemorative of that event. While the "Southern mines" have not at any time been as active as those located farther north, they have lately been enhanced by the development of the agricultural resources of the surrounding country and the establishment of important manufacturing interests which have been attracted to the city by its tidewater facilities and the centering of roads within its boundaries. Its importance is growing and it has a bright future ahead of it, a which last week's celebration has emphasized to a marked degree.

Official Annexation Pledges.

At the mass meeting held at Elmhurst on Saturday evening Oakland entered in earnest on the annexation campaign and, Mayor Mott acting as its authorized mouthpiece, committed the administration to the carrying out of a program affecting the territory now outside the city's boundaries in the event it voted for annexation, which every intelligent citizen will approve and pledge himself to aid.

The whole of Brooklyn township has earnestly desired to be annexed to Oakland for a long time past. With the growth of population the desire has gained strength, for this growth of population has developed the urgent need for municipal facilities which a suburban or village condition does not and cannot provide, and the settlements included in the area to vote on annexation have outgrown the village condition.

But until Saturday night's meeting those residing in these outside settlements who favored annexation to Oakland could do no better than speculate on the benefits that the new condition would presumably bring them. The chief asset of the campaign which they have waged for months past was the mere presumption that union with the parent municipality would give their territory equal rights and privileges and benefits with the former. The sole capital of their opponents was vested in the fact that no official assurance had been given of the extension of these rights, privileges and benefits to their territory, if annexed, and it was so bold as to assert that Oakland would simply utilize them for the selfish purpose of increasing its revenues through their taxation.

Mayor Mott cut away the ground on which the anti-annexationists stood in his Elmhurst speech on Saturday night. He gave all of the territory proposed to be annexed his personal pledge that the five-cent street car service and its transfer privileges would be granted to it, and that every benefit and facility which this municipality enjoys now exclusively should be shared equally. Indeed, it is an open secret that in voting down annexation at the last election held by a few adverse votes, the territory now seeking to be annexed voted indirectly against a five-cent fare, and for two years or so nearly every resident within it has paid the penalty of an extra fare in consequence.

Since the last election, also, more than one section of this outside territory has had occasion to realize the value of municipal protection against fire which, although Oakland was under no obligation to grant, was voluntarily given in times of grave peril to valuable property. The increasing congestion of population in this outside territory during the past two years has also brought home to its residents the necessity for increased police protection, to insure the safety of person and property which its inhabitants are incapable of providing without burdening themselves with excessive taxation to maintain an adequate establishment. Other municipal privileges and facilities they have been compelled to deny to themselves for like reasons. With the assurances given by Mayor Mott it must be clear now to the most obtuse intelligence that with annexation the territory to be annexed will enjoy every advantage and benefit the municipality as it exists is enjoying, share and share alike, and that they will likewise possess the additional privilege of having a voice in the framing of a new charter which will meet the wants of an enlarged city more thoroughly than that now in force.

It will not be surprising if the revolution which has been raging for some weeks in Nicaragua ends in the creation of a new republic through declaration of independence by the revolutionary leader, General Estrada, of the Atlantic Coast States. The State Department at Washington has received an official dispatch from Nicaragua that such a movement is contemplated. That such a step if taken will solve the Central American problem is doubtful. Indeed, it is more likely to operate the other way and make the solution of the problem and the establishment of permanent peace more difficult. The addition of another independent political organism to the restive petty republics already existing there will most likely introduce a new disturbing element and source of discord, rather than peace, into that unhappy section of the North American continent.

In the sudden death of Willus Britt, one of the most picturesque characters that has held a place in the center of the stage in the world of pugilism, has disappeared.

The Bermondsey bye-election held Thursday was carried by the Unionist candidate. It was the first bye-election since the budget agitation was started. Usually bye-elections in England are regarded as straws indicating the direction in which the tide of public opinion is flowing. Under ordinary conditions the Bermondsey bye-election would have had this significance, as the seat was carried by a Liberal at the preceding election in 1906 by a majority of 1795. But yesterday's election was a three-cornered contest and the Unionist won out by a plurality. The Unionists are making the most of the victory and claiming, of course, that it shows the tide of public sentiment has turned against the principles enunciated in the budget and a waning in the popularity of the Asquith-Lloyd-George ministry. Under the circumstances under which the election was held this claim is, however, scarcely tenable.

How Her Size Worries Women

NEW YORK.—That one man's meat may be another's poison; likewise, that while nature may never make mistakes she sometimes makes trouble, was seemingly indicated by the difficulties of two women and a girl which came to light yesterday.

One, three times as big as an ordinary woman, is suing the city for damages because, she alleges, the city is responsible for the loss of some of her weight, upon which she depends for a livelihood.

A second, although but 14 years old, has the avoirdupois and height of a stevedore, which has made her a subject of ridicule, caused her to play truant from school and has resulted in the finding of her mother by a magistrate.

The third is so tiny that she could hardly be seen when she went before a magistrate to press a complaint, and, besides, her distress caused a policeman no end of embarrassment.

"Frankly, thy name is woman," had known Mrs. Kate Manning, had known Mrs. Kate Manning, had known Mrs. Manning, who is anything but frail, tipping the scale at 450 pounds. Mrs. Manning, who is professionally known as "Fat Amy," demands $5,000 from the city as compensation for the reduction of her embonpoint, due, she says, to municipal carelessness in the matter of keeping the streets and sidewalks in good condition. She is a professional "fat lady," and has been able to earn large sums of money at county fairs, especially in New Haven, where she was a favorite attraction.

Solon Lillenthal, who represents the complainant, says that the ditch, which was used to draw water from nearby lots, had been in existence two years, although there had been many complaints against it. The case will be heard today in the supreme court of Richmond county.

HER SIZE A HANDICAP.

Far from profiting by her huge proportions, Mary Calabro, 14 years old, of No. 31 Oliver street, has suffered by it and it had made her mother $1 poorer. The girl weighs 190 pounds and towered four inches above the trunk officer who took her and her mother before Magistrate House in the Tenth Court yesterday morning.

Turning to the tall woman before him, the magistrate sternly demanded:

"Madame, why don't you send this child to school? Where is the child?"

Whereupon a little woman, standing beside the person addressed, spoke up: "I am the mother, Your Honor," she said. "This is the child."

Mary Calabro told why she didn't like to go to school. The children have been teasing her because of her gigantic stature, and she is sensitive about it. She attended Public School No. 1, in Vanderwater street, a few times, but was so ridiculed, she said, that she went home crying.

Magistrate House told Mrs. Calabro that Mary's size was no excuse for truancy and imposed a fine of $1 on the mother.

ONLY THIRTY INCHES TALL.

If Mary Calabro's surplus weight and size were added to that already possessed by Miss Caroline Hans, of No. 256 West Thirty-eighth street, who appeared as a complainant before Magistrate Stohrer in the Jefferson Market Court yesterday, Miss Hans would still be a small woman.

John Molloy, of No. 252 West One Hundred and Fifty-third street, was the defendant in the case, having been accused of Miss Hans of running over her dog while he was driving a milk wagon last Sunday.

"Where is the complainant?" asked Magistrate Stohrer, when Molloy was brought before him.

Himmlingham stooped and lifted up a woman only thirty-two inches tall. Pounding her tiny fist on the bench, she told how Molloy had killed her dog and demanded that he be punished. It was a prize King Charles spaniel, and was given to her by the Lord Mayor of Manchester, England, last summer when she was playing with a "Giant the Giant Killer" company of Lilliputians. She mentioned that she was 26 years old, although she would have no trouble in passing for 5.

Even though she stood on a chair, the Lilliputian was not tall enough for the magistrate to see her. So he took down the Penal Code, the Revised Statutes and other large volumes, which he had placed under the tiny complainant. Then the top of her head appeared.

Molloy was held in $300 bail.

Liberty of the Press

Wholesomeness in public life will be furthered by the decision of the federal court in the Indianapolis News case yesterday. The government was proposing to remove the owners of the News to Washington to stand trial for criticisms of Panama Canal procedure. In his decision refusing the government's request Judge Anderson held that much latitude should be allowed in newspaper discussion of public questions and that the newspaper should not be compelled to defend itself at a distance from the place of publication.

Both points are reasonable and of prime importance to the public. Newspapers, of course, might readily enough refrain from discussing public questions or criticizing public officials—on outcome devoutly desired by seekers of special privileges. But the nation and every community in it is vitally interested in preserving the right of free discussion.

It would be possible for an unscrupulous administration to suppress criticism by forcing newspapers editors to go to trial in Washington for alleged libel, instead of at the place of publication. Such procedure would involve heavy expense to the newspaper concerned and might result in virtual immunity to the officials of the government.

Liberty of the press—an idea for which the founders of this government contended strenuously—has lost none of its importance in a country overrun by big interests asking for something for nothing.—Kansas City Star.

Royalty and Their Medicines

Members of the royal family of England occasionally have to take medicine, and their medicine, although it may be the same as that supplied by ordinary doctors and druggists to the average man and woman, is dispensed in a manner which makes it impossible to be tampered with until it is placed in the hands of the royal personage for whom it is intended. Each royal dispenser—and there are several—has a room set apart especially for dispensing medicine for royalty. When a prescription is brought in by a royal messenger the dispenser himself or his assistant takes the date and the time of its receipt. The prescription is then passed into the private room. Here are glass cupboards, securely locked, containing the drugs which are used in making the medicines for members of the royal family. Describing the formalities and precautions then observed, Tit-Bits says:

After the prescription has been entered in a book—each member of the royal family has his or her prescription book, which is provided with a lock and kept in a safe—the work of dispensing is done by the dispenser and his assistant. The cupboards are unlocked and the drugs brought out and placed on a table. Each drug before being used is analyzed and the necessary quantities weighed and measured on two or three different pairs of scales to ensure exactness. The water used is of the highest state of purity, and every possible care is taken to keep it in that state while the medicine is being made up. When the medicine is finally bottled the names and quantities of every ingredient are placed on the label, together with directions as to taking written in English and Latin. The bottle, after being corked and sealed, is placed in a strong case, which is locked. This case has two keys, one being retained by the dispenser and the other being in the possession of the royal personage for whom the medicine is intended. A trusted royal servant or a king's messenger conveys the case and its contents to the royal residence, where it is unlocked and the bottle of medicine examined and the particulars upon the label checked by the royal physician in attendance.

Queen Alexandra expresses her admiration for Italy as a health giving country, and she has often visited "Sunny" Naples and "Romantic" Rome.

The late Queen Victoria considered St. Leonards-on-the-Sea the finest summer resort in Britain, and often went there while as a child she was fond of deporting herself on the public bathing grounds at Bognor. It is known that she spent many holidays in the Isle of Man, but few persons are aware that she patronized tiny seaside towns that are almost unknown to the average holiday maker. For instance, when in a poor state of health, she spent a portion of one autumn at Gorey in Jersey.

Occasionally the German Emperor when feeling run down, will visit Felix-towe unknown to the world. A year or two ago, when it was thought by his ministers that he was spending a quiet time at one of his private resorts he was actually strolling about Westgate in the disguise of an English tourist.—Tit-Bits.

Radium as Cure for Cancer

Arrangements are being perfected in New York for the incorporation of the American Radium Institute, to be devoted to the treatment of cancer and similar diseases. Those who are interested in the enterprise are eminent surgeons, chemists, physicians, and other professional men, and it is intended to minister to deserving patients free of charge. A meeting for organization will take place next week at a prominent club, and until then the sponsors desire to withhold their names from publication.

The Institute will be conducted much on the same plan as similar ones in Paris and London. The work will be divided into various sections, such as chemical, physical, medical and botanical, with an expert in charge, and it is intended that for experiments the laboratory of the Rockefeller Institute will be available.

Supplies of pitchblende for manufacture are to be drawn from Colorado and other Western localities, where the initial process of extracting the radium will be conducted. It is planned to have a factory in New York for the preparation of the radium, and also a hospital, and it is announced that the Institute is not in any sense commercial, as that several of the scientists who are interested in it are not only giving their services free, but are contributing from their own means to the fund which will be required to establish the plant. The co-operation of several wealthy men has been assured.

The supply of radium is extremely limited but it is hoped through the activity of the Institute to increase it and to widen the application of this powerful remedial agent. The market price is $1000 for ten milligrams, or approximately $2700 a pound. In order to make the substance do its duty, the utmost milligram is also used in the form of coatings, which are placed on pencils of celluloid. One of these pencils may be placed in a malignant growth and thus used in treatment. Often the agent may be administered by means of a gelatine compound.—New York Herald.

Teeth and Tuberculosis

In this year's Harvard summer school session several instructive evening lectures have been given by men well informed in relation to curing for children quite outside of textbook matters. Professor Potter, who is a teacher in the Harvard dental school, gave to the summer students several valuable talks on the care of children's teeth. He said that, as in other branches of medicine, prevention was often more valuable than cure. His examples of this sort of prevention were taken from the experiences of doctors and teachers in the public schools of Brookline, where every pupil undergoes a dental examination, which is followed up by other inspections and reports as to the interest and care which the child receives from its parents.

"From our dental examinations in the Brookline schools," he said, "we have gained valuable data, and we believe that the children and the community have benefited by the enforced care of the pupils' teeth. In general, such enforced care leads to better teeth, and a result, better physical health, and a resultant, better mental power."

Moreover, care of the teeth in people of all ages helps to put a stop to tuberculosis. We found among the children, even of such a town as Brookline, that decay was very prevalent, that while many of the children had dental care of some sort, it was not always scientific. In many cases no thought of such care seemed to exist in the minds of the parents. After the first examination of a child's teeth we notified the parents or guardian of our findings, suggesting that the child be taken to a practitioner, or if conditions did not allow that, we saw that the patient was sent either to the Harvard dental school or to the Infirmary of the Tufts College Dental School.—Boston Transcript.

Nothing Against Cook Yet

What seems likely to prove the most important piece of Arctic news since Harry Whitney confirmed Dr. Cook's story at some vital point is the detailed report brought back from Greenland by the Dane, Knud Rasmussen, who, after earnest investigation among the Eskimos, is convinced that Cook really reached the pole. The news, of course, comes from Copenhagen. We may as well reflect on ourselves once for all to the fact that though an American has found the pole, Denmark and not America is the world's distributing center for Arctic intelligence. We think of Greenland, because it is in the new world, in a sense, coming within our sphere as being connected with the United States for example, more closely than with Europe. But the fact, of course, is that inhabited Greenland is a Danish possession.

PASSING OF THE COYOTE

Word comes from the game warden's office that a war of extermination is about to be declared on the coyote and the gray wolf, especially on the coyote. The warriors of the warden are to go forth with arms of poison to carry the war against cannibals into his remotest haunts. The warden wants the wolf, but he is absolutely determined to get the coyote. For these two creatures are costing the State tens of thousands of dollars a year and though one wolf destroys as much as many coyotes, there is such a preponderance in numbers on the side of the coyotes that they do much more than half of the damage.

The coyote is too costly a hunter. He never takes prairie dog or mouse when he can get chicken, and never takes chicken when he can get turkey. He voluntarily fed $150 worth of turkeys to the coyotes this spring and the creature had the impudence to come back and howl for more.

The coyote takes young lambs by hundreds, perhaps by thousands each year. He has simply put an end to the poultry business in several sections of the State. He has kept the poultry business from ever starting in the parts of the State which need it most. Chickens and turkeys would solve many of the problems of dry farming—if the dry farmers would first solve the problem of the coyotes. No harvester ever gleaned so clean but chickens would get fat picking up the leftovers. For several months in the year turkeys would feed themselves on the prairie insects. But the coyote, and to a lesser extent the gray wolf, simply wipes all dry land poultry farming, with the result that you pay 75 cents apiece for alleged spring chickens, and generally come to the conclusion that they were raised in Eastern Kansas, at the nearest, and walked all the way out here.—Rocky Mountain News (Denver), New York World.

To Harness The Rio Grande

President Taft's wonderment over the desert and over the enterprise that has made part of it yield sustenance for human beings, as expressed in his speeches, has borne fruit.

As a matter of fact southwestern Texas was "laying" for the President. Lawrence Bennett, head of a private irrigation enterprise that has reclaimed a million and a half acres of desert, will present to Mr. Taft a proposition from the pioneers of development in the district at which he wondered. They ask that the United States and Mexico agree to make of the Rio Grande another Nile by international agreement. This would mean that by a system of dams the waters of the Rio Grande would be diverted to irrigate arid lands and that at its present mouth the river dividing the United States and Mexico would be dry, but its waters would have made productive 12,000,000 acres on the American side and as many more across the border.

The men of this section will not ask a cent of the government. All they will ask is that the government make an agreement with Mexico as to the amount of water to be taken by each country, and that the two governments supervise its distribution.

Private capital in small and large lots will do the work. The Rio Grande as a boundary line will be only a memory; but on the American side alone an area as large as Massachusetts will be made another garden spot built in a desert.—New York World.

Twenty Years Ago in Oakland

The Southern Pacific Railroad today granted the demand for an eight-hour work day after the Elit Hour League had threatened to call a strike. The new railroad order applies to all day workers from Oakland to Sacramento. The will, however, receive pay for only eight hours work.

Henry Sangster, treasurer and bookkeeper of the Judson Manufacturing Co., was arrested today for refusal to let Mr. Butler, a stockholder of the company, examine the books of the concern.

Joseph Santos, a wood-chopper, was instantly killed this morning near Niles when a tree which he was cutting down fell, pinning him beneath it.

Oakland and San Francisco are fighting bitterly for the Coast League pennant, but two games separating the two teams. San Francisco is in the lead.

CHURCH PRELATE SOLVES GREAT MYSTERY--WOMEN Sex Instinct Causes Her to Squander Money, Says Bishop Spaulding; 'Woman, Not Dress, That Counts'

Men and Women as Seen Through the Eyes of Bishop Spaulding

A man never becomes a bad man until some woman robs him of his ideal of woman.

The kindergarten is a scientific substitute for the home. Remarriage of a divorcee should be regulated by law. Women should not poke fun at a man's ideals. The rich, smart set of every city is a joke. Women should have equal wings for equal work. Women are not so much to blame for the divorce evil as men. I cannot conceive of a Phidias making a Venus of the modern woman.

There is a coarseness to seeing women at the polls. Women should eventually evolve out of the habit of wearing gaudy and expensive clothing. Women have reached the reaction period, through higher education, where they now take a pride in motherhood. The woman of today looks like the carving on an ancient Egyptian bas-relief.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1.—The Right Rev. F. S. Spaulding, Episcopal Bishop of Utah, who has been spending a week in San Francisco and Berkeley, said some very interesting things last night during his first newspaper interview on the subject of the world's greatest mystery—woman.

His grace does not pretend to know anything about women. He stoutly maintains that he knows them not at all.

"A woman should be womanly above all things else," he said. "To say a woman is pretty is not always praise. The word pretty implies that a woman has no brains. A woman should cultivate intellectual development and a good, strong character, so that persons in making of her will refer to her personality first, rather than her looks."

Then asked what he thought of the present vogue of stuffed hair and the fashionable speechless figures the smart women are endeavoring to acquire, he declared was not so bad that it would shock a bishop.

HARD FOR PHIDIAS.

"I can not conceive of a Phidias making a Venus of the modern woman."

"There is no set rule for beauty, but to my mind the woman of today looks like the carving on an ancient Egyptian bas-relief—the same stiff lines and excessive roll of hair. The Bible says a woman's long hair is a glory."

"And as to clothes, it makes no difference how a woman may dress. I have never heard men speak of how a woman is dressed or how they have heard them discuss the matter."

"Let two women get together and they begin to talk about clothes. It has been stated time and time again that women dress for men to look at, but I ask women dress for women. Notice how they look each other over."

CLOTHES DON'T COUNT.

"It is the woman who counts, and not her clothes. Some of the plainest women are the most beautiful. A woman's character and soul make a woman beautiful, and not personal adornment."

"Speaking of clothes and spending money—yes, and women spending more than they can afford on clothes—

RESENT MALE MAJORITY ON PLAYGROUNDS COMMISSION Women's Clubs to Storm the Council Chamber Tonight to Voice Protests

Owing to the resignation of Miss Ethel Moore as a member of the Oakland Playground Commission, it has been proposed that the vacancy should be filled by a man. An amendment to that effect is to be put before the city council at the meeting of tonight.

Heretofore the commission has been composed of three women and two men, and the proposed amendment will give the majority to the men.

RESENT MALE MAJORITY.

As the playgrounds have been organized through the efforts of clubwomen, they consider it unjust to take the balance of power from them, and yesterday held a mass meeting at Pythian Castle to consider resolutions of protest to present before the city council.

Clubwomen throughout the city were asked to be present and a hundred or more responded.

This morning at 11 o'clock the directors of the Oakland Club met in the club rooms at Pythian Castle and drafted resolutions of protest which will be presented at the meeting of the council tonight. The resolutions will be as follows:

PROTEST TO COUNCIL.

First.—Protesting against a majority of men on the playground commission, second, protesting against the interference that women lack executive ability; and third, urging that the playground commission be composed of women in the majority and giving the directing voice.

Pittsburg and Los Angeles were the cities named and in both cities the work has proven to be of greater success through the influence of the women upon the board.

The women who will present the resolutions at tonight's meeting are: Mrs. Joan Mole, Mrs. Frances Gray, Miss Grace Trevor, Mrs. Leon Hall, Miss Besse Wood and Dr. Carr S. Aldrich.

RALLY FOR FIGHT.

At the meeting of the West Oakland home, which was held today, Miss Grace Trevor read the resolutions as they are to be presented. "There is an ordinance before the city council, however, making the playground commission an auxiliary of the park commission instead of the board of public works. In the proposed change there will be five directors of the playground commission instead of three and it is possible that the women will be eliminated, not that they have not the playground commission at heart, but because greater efficiency can possibly be obtained by having a directorate of men. Up to this time I have not, however, given the matter a great deal of thought, being more seriously occupied with the bond and annexation election."

FREAKISH FLYER NEAR COMPLETION Inventor Stanley Will Attempt Flight Later Part of This Week

Charles Stanley, the inventor whose completed airship has been on exhibition at 408 Fifteenth street for the past week, is installing a gasoline motor with which the craft is propelled, and it is the belief of those interested that the machine will be ready for an ascension by the latter part of this week.

Though his ship will carry eight people, he claims, Stanley will make the first try-out accompanied only by a helper. Rising directly from the small lot where the big bird of the air now stands, he will head directly for Lake Merritt, hovering over the water as long as possible. His purpose in this is to take no chances of damaging the machine, which has been constructed at a great cost, before he is thoroughly familiar with its mechanism.

The machine will carry 1000 pounds and gasoline enabling the craft to remain up for thirty hours, if necessary. It is said, but no attempt to test the full capacity will make the first ascension.

"I want to be sure of every part, before I make the real try-out," said Stanley today. "When I have done this we intend to fly from city to city, going as far as El Paso, and up north to Portland."

INDIANA CAMPAIGN CLOSES.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 1.—Municipal campaigns throughout Indiana will close today and the voters will give their decisions in the elections tomorrow. The campaign has been the principal issue, especially in Indianapolis.

UNION NATIONAL BANK DEPOSITORS GROW RESTIVE Call Issued for a Meeting to Force Some Kind of a Definite Settlement by the Receiver

An advertisement has been running in THE TRIBUNE for several days past inviting depositors in the defunct Union National Bank to meet at the offices of Attorneys James P. Montgomery and Frank L. Rawson, rooms 207, 208, and 209 in the Bacon block, on the evening of November 11. The purpose, as announced, is to investigate and take such action as is necessary to determine why no proper action has been taken to settle the affairs of said institution and divide the assets.

In an interview on the subject this morning Mr. Rawson said:

"It is a long time since the Union National Bank was forced to close its doors under an order of the United States controller of the currency, and its affairs were placed in the hands of a United States receiver. Since then no dividends have been declared, and, what is more, no depositor has so far been able to get any definite explanation from the receiver in charge of the available assets of the bank or when there is any likelihood of a dividend being declared. Mr. Montgomery and myself are interested depositors. Each in turn has solicited information from the receiver in vain. The answer has been invariably the same—that the investigation of the accounts of the bank is still in progress and that results are still undetermined."

"Mr. Montgomery and I have grown tired of that kind of treatment, and we have reached the conclusion that the only way the depositors can hope to accomplish anything for their own benefit is to get together, organize and appoint a suitable committee to represent them, and if nothing definite and satisfactory can be obtained by the committee from the receiver to carry the matter to Washington and force a settlement."

"Our action in calling a meeting of the depositors has been prompted solely by the fact that we are both victimized depositors, not as attorneys, for we do not expect to get any fees for what we are doing or what we may do later."

"While the depositors of the Union National Bank are being kept in suspense the United States receiver is in the meantime piling up expenses, employing a staff of clerks riding around in automobiles, and has rented a suite of costly offices in the most costly building in town, all of which must be paid out of the resources of the bank, at the expense of the depositors. So far as the evidence goes no thing has been done to force the stockholders to make good the shortage in the amount due to depositors—none of them having yet been sued to recover the money for which they are liable. To the contrary, expensive attorneys have been employed to prosecute cases against individuals who are supposed to have misused the bank's money. Depositors have rights, however, which are being apparently ignored. It is evident that the only way matters can be brought to a head and action forced which will be of some benefit to depositors is for the depositors to come together and organize and appoint a committee that will compel a speedy adjustment of the bank's affairs and the distribution of dividends among them."

Five-Cent Fare and New Charter Pledged by Mayor

SUPPORTED BY BUSINESS INTERESTS, CITY'S CHIEF CAN 'MAKE GOOD' PROMISES

Every Civic Improvement That Oakland Enjoys Will Go to Annexed District, Declares Mott in Speech

Doubt as to the outcome of annexation was dispelled by the speech of Mayor Mott at Elmhurst Saturday night, which demonstrated all the objections raised by those opposed to joining in the formation of the greater city.

A new aspect was given to the campaign and as said by James J. O'Toole of Elmhurst:

"The objectors haven't a leg to stand upon. The only quibble that the chronic objectors may raise will be whether the Mayor can deliver the goods. We know he can, but that will be the cry of those who had their platform of opposition knocked into smithereens."

WILL "MAKE GOOD."

So far as that is concerned the Mayor will show he can and will make good in obtaining five-cent car fare to the uttermost limits of the annexed district and will start the work towards a new charter and give every other municipal advantage that he has promised.

In all the Mayor says and does in this campaign he has the loyal support of the city council, the backing of the big interests, and consequential factors of the community, and the unwavering endorsement of those who are massed under the banner of the Chamber of Commerce.

That he has such endorsement, support and backing will be demonstrated before the campaign progresses another week, and all opposition manifested in the outside districts will be reduced to "pure kick."

No reasonable property owner or citizen living in the district proposed to be annexed can ask for more than what the Mayor has pledged himself to grant.

He can read for himself that annexation means reduced taxation, the underwriters promise reduced insurance rates, the municipality will give police and fire protection, the same advantages of lighting, sewers, street improvements and other advantages that accrue to and are enjoyed by every section of the city.

A five-cent fare and extension of street car lines is the premiums that will come from the electric railways.

As an extra bonus for good measure is thrown in the great system of wharves and the city hall and other betterments provided for in the bond issue, which will be carried in this city November 15th by a vote of four to one.

Frank W. Bilger, commanding the annexation forces, joyfully concedes that the battle is easier since the Mayor spoke at Elmhurst.

"All the arguments presented against annexation have been demolished," said Mr. Bilger. "It has changed a campaign of doubt into certainty. But we will fight for the enlargement of Oakland until the last ballot is voted. We will not count on victory until the returns spell it."

The address of J. P. Montgomery at Elmhurst, delivered from the same platform as that of Mayor Mott, had a tremendous effect upon those who had figured on the support of the new charter party in this city to aid in the defeat of annexation.

MONTGOMERY'S STAND.

Mr. Montgomery was one of the leaders of that movement, but he came out openly and manfully declared that he was for annexation and made an eloquent appeal as well as setting forth cogent reasons why his hearers should become citizens of and aid in forming the greater city.

He showed further that upon a petition presenting 15 per cent of the qualified voters of the city a new charter election and all its advantages must be provided for by the city council, under constitutional provision.

He further conceded that in not knowing the plans for the future of the new charter movement was a mistake, but that the light of later developments has revealed to have been inoperative.

Mr. Montgomery's influence is without question. The son of the late J. C. Montgomery, one of Oakland's foremost lawyers, a man who was heard and square-toed upon all public issues and who was ever in the state and truth, a member of Cleveland's cabinet, and also the nephew of the universally beloved archbishop, Mr. Montgomery's stand and speech had a powerful effect upon all doubters. It was furthermore an opponent of Mayor Mott and the present council, and that he has joined in the movement for bonds and annexation is gratifying evidence that Oakland stands a unit on the forward movements and that the mayor's hands will be upheld by friends and foe in the creation and upbuilding of the greater city.

ENERGETIC WORK.

The central committee in the outside districts has arranged for carrying on the campaign for annexation without a moment's let up. Tomorrow night a rousing rally with band and song and speakers, including Mayor Mott has been arranged for Fruitvale at Armory Hall. Thursday evening Melrose will have a campaign rally and Mayor Mott will also speak there. Friday evening a meeting will be held at Latham Terrace and Diamond will be aroused on Saturday evening.

A folder showing a map of the district proposed to be annexed, as well as showing what the taxes are and what they will be under municipal rule has been prepared by City Statistician Frank A. Miles and will be put in circulation during the week. The folder is a comprehensive showing of the saving that will be effected by annexation in tax rates as well as the other advantages that accrue from becoming a part of the greater city.

The voters within the municipal boundaries are to be aroused to the fact that annexation means more than doubling the city's present area and bringing 50,000 additional people within its boundaries as well as several miles of bay frontage that will be available for wharves and docks.

BONDS A CERTAINTY

The reports made at the luncheon at the Forum today were highly gratifying so far as they concerned the bond issue.

Bernard P. Miller declared that the bonds were a four-to-one proposition.

"I have only found one man in twenty," he said, "that thought the bond issue was inadvisable. We need not worry about that fight. The only danger is that it may go by default and that is why it should be kept up till the polls close."

J. W. Garthwaite found the same condition of affairs prevailing. "West Oakland is one strong for the bond issue," said Mr. Garthwaite, "and that is a good sign. I have talked with several of the leading labor factors and they declare the union men of Oakland are for the improvements contemplated in the bond issue."

A SURE TOUCHDOWN!

FOUR LIQUOR LICENSES GRANTED; 2 ARE HELD UP

Board of Supervisors Orders Bridge Work and Macadamizing--Melrose Gets Old Jail Cells

The Board of Supervisors convened this morning with all members present and C. F. Horner in the chair. The usual order was dispensed with and the matter of improvement of roadways taken up.

Two bids were received for the macadamizing of Baker avenue from East Fourteenth street to Peach Hill Park, which the County Surveyor had placed an estimate of $1500.

E. B. & A. L. Stone Co. bid $1400 and A. H. Kopperud $1270. The latter was awarded the contract.

ONE BRIDGE BID. For the bridge on the Dublin-Sunol road, estimated by the County Surveyor was from Stephenson & Hoard, $1100, who were awarded the contract.

The following liquor licenses upon recommendation of the judicial committee were ordered to be issued: John Bauman, Irvington. J. C. Harvey, Alvarado. J. B. Silva, Alvarado.

J. E. Chastel & Co., Walter avenue and San Leandro road.

The application of H. V. Snowlett on San Leandro road and Moss avenue was referred to the judicial committee to take the usual course.

SHERIFF'S REPORT. The report of Sheriff Barnett, showing the number of prisoners confined in the county jail from September 24 to October 23 was read and filed. A total number of 1577 days were served at a cost for meals of $388.25.

A number of applications for the correction of errors in the tax roll approved by the District Attorney were made as requested.

The report of the Associated Charities, in four cases referred to its consideration, was received and filed.

The report of the viewers on the closing of a portion of county road 4266 and endorsed by the County Surveyor was outside districts. He declares the meeting Saturday night at Elmhurst and the enthusiasm displayed far exceeded his expectations.

Tomorrow night the mayor will speak before the Building Trades Council in their hall at Twelfth and Brush streets on "Annexation and Bonds." He will also be the feature on the program to be presented at the big rally to be held in Armory Hall, Fruitvale, tomorrow night.

The suggestion has met with favor and a general appeal is made to employers to comply with it as every effort should be put forward to facilitate the casting of ballots, so fraught with benefit to Oakland on these days.

"Noon hour" meetings among the various industrial establishments is the inauguration of Hugh Hogan of the Hogan Lumber Company.

Meetings during the noon hour are being arranged on Adams and Delmonico streets where the assemblages will be appealed to by employers to devote their efforts to furthering annexation and bonds, which means so much in the forward movement of the city.

The meetings will be extended to other large establishments where there are a number of employees and the employers will urge them to exert their influence in the cause.

The petition of Melrose residents for jail accommodations addressed to Sheriff Barnett was transmitted to the board. The sheriff recommended that two cells from the old county jail be set up at the Melrose fire house as fully meeting the requirements of the people in that section.

The improvement was urged by Deputy District Attorney Leon Clark and referred to the committee of the whole.

The petition of residents and taxpayers for the opening and maintenance of Palo avenue from East Fourteenth street to lands of Wm. Cluff was referred to the County Surveyor.

The petition of residents that Moss avenue in Elmhurst be macadamized and accepted was referred to the County Surveyor.

The acceptance of Garden street as laid down in the map of Emmett tract, in Brooklyn township was denied.

A communication from the County Surveyor concerning the dangerous condition of the bridge over the Arroyo El Valle was referred to Supervisor Horner with power to expend a sum not exceeding $500 in making the required repairs.

The resolution ordered by Supervisor Kelley and seconded by Supervisor Foss authorized the building committee to have the walls, ceiling and stairways of the county court house painted.

POSITIONS ARE FILLED. The substitution and filling of the following positions at the County Infirmary as requested by the Superintendent were authorized: M. Burke, head nurse from October 24, at $50 a month; J. Callaghan, night watchman, at $45 a month; J. Steel, carpenter, in place of E. McDonald during vacancy.

The clerk was ordered to notify Scott and Farley to proceed with work on the improvement of the Bay Farm Island bridge which they hold the contracts.

Supervisor Horner said they would have to rush the work on the Livermore canal bridge in the time specified in their contract and before the heavy rains set in.

Supervisor Bridge said that the Bay Farm Island improvement was in the same condition. Both supervisors declare they would oppose any extension of time in either case.

The board adjourned to meet next Monday.

MASKED HIGHWAYMEN ROB CARIBOO STAGE

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 1.—Two masked highwaymen held up the Cariboo stage at 150 Mile House in Cariboo early today and stole several sacks of registered mail. The robbers were armed with rifles and met with no resistance from the driver or the passengers. While there is no way of ascertaining the exact amount of the theft it is likely that the robbers got four or five thousand dollars.

FACE DEATH AS BALLOON BASKETS DRAG IN MARSH

Women Aeronauts in Inter-City Aerial Race Undergo Strenuous Time as Big Gas Bags Skirt Earth

Two daring women aeronauts had a thrilling experience and nearly lost their lives yesterday in the final balloon race of the series for the silver cup donated by the Portola Festival Committee. The aero clubs of Oakland and San Francisco each had a balloon entered and the flight would have been without particularly sensational features had it not been for the calamitous landing made in the salt marshes of the southern shores of the bay about 5 o'clock in the evening near Alvarado.

ACCOMPANY AERONAUTS.

The women who made the ascension—Miss Marguerite Miller in the Oakland gasbag, with J. C. Mars as pilot, and Miss Genevieve Schaffer as the mascot of the San Francisco balloon, piloted by Ivy Baldwin—braved the harrowing dangers that surrounded them with remarkable composure and came out of them all with no ill-effects further than mental and nervous shock, from which they both have already entirely recovered.

The "City of Oakland" was the balloon that Miss Miller and Pilot Mars made their flight in, while Miss Schaffer and Pilot Baldwin occupied the "Queen of the Pacific." The race was of particular interest to Miss Miller because her father, James Miller, a prominent manufacturer and capitalist of this city, promised to purchase her a balloon large enough to carry eight persons should the "City of Oakland" win the race. This the rules which governed the contest, so she wins the balloon.

OAKLAND IS WINNER.

According to the rules agreed to by the contestants touching the water or earth with the basket of either balloon would constitute an official landing. Both gas bags struck the water, but as the Oakland balloon was ten miles nearer the Alameda shore than was its San Francisco contestant, it claims the cup. The "City of Oakland" went into the water several times, finally landing on the Bliss Farm, a mile west of Alameda and three miles east of Oakland. The "Queen of the Pacific" dragged seven or eight miles through the salt marsh and tidelands before colliding at the Palmer Salt Works, just outside of Alvarado.

AERONAUTS DRENCHED.

These "official landings" were made within ten miles of each other, and then, with the aeronauts drenched and shivering, after being dragged through the boggy water in their bouncing baskets, the big gas bags rose again in the air, sailing high toward ocean. Although to land again on terra firma, the Oakland balloonists reached earth without injury and without damage to the balloons. The intrepid women aeronauts returned home undrunk by their half-ratting experience, declaring that the flight had been a "most enjoyable function" and enthusiastically affirming that they were ready to make another ascension at any time.

IN AIR TWO HOURS.

The "City of Oakland" made its official landing at 5:10 p. m., having been in the air two hours lacking one minute, and the exact distance covered was 38 miles. According to the rules of the contest, the balloon was declared the winner. The San Francisco balloon, piloted by Ivy Baldwin, was seen by Pilot Mars from Oakland. Andrew Anderson of Newark and Alfred Sterns of Alameda, following is the log of the winning race:

5:11 p. m.—Left San Francisco. Four bags ballast. Altitude 2000 feet. Baldwin still high over Golden Gate. 5:20 p. m.—Just leaving San Francisco over bay. Altitude 4000 feet. Baldwin still high over Golden Gate. 5:45 p. m.—Going up bay toward San Jose. Altitude 5000 feet. Baldwin going down bay house at Golden Gate. Still have four bags ballast.

FLIRTS WITH BOAT CREW. 6 p. m.—Over bay, going toward San Jose, traveling 20 miles an hour. Altitude 4000 feet. Still have ballast. Baldwin still high over Golden Gate. 6:10 p. m.—Toward Oakland. Miss Miller flitting with crew of tug boat and enjoying trip immensely.

6:15 p. m.—Altitude not over 200 feet. Over bay. Three bags of ballast. Baldwin over Oakland. 6:20 p. m.—Using water anchor; two bags of ballast. Baldwin going back over bay, about 10 miles in rear. Heading toward Alvarado. Two miles from shore.

6:25 p. m.—Baldwin touched the water. Dragged through the water for seven or eight miles and landed. 6:25 p. m.—We touched water, constituting landing. Threw out ballast and went flying farm, landed and collapsed balloon.

DROGGED THROUGH MUD. Good fortune more than anything else saved the daring aeronauts and their feminine mascots from death in the soft mud and treacherous boggy water of the marshes. The City of Oakland dragged through the marshes for nearly three miles and then a farmer caught the anchor rope and after strenuous work brought the moving bag to a halt. Miss Miller and Mars immediately returned to Oakland, where they were greeted by a large crowd of enthusiastic friends and admirers. The brave young woman accepted the ovation with modest enthusiasm, saying that what pleased her most was the fact that her balloon was the trophy winner.

STRIKES IN MARSHES. The San Francisco gas bag came to earth about 4:45 o'clock. It dropped lower and lower towards the water of the marshes until the basket was dragging in the mud. Like their opponents in the City of Oakland the occupants were drenched through and through. In their efforts to raise the huge bag from the water's surface they thrashed out the heavy tarpaulin with a rope attached. When the gas bag was clear of the water again it was pulled back. For about eight miles the Queen of the Pacific dragged along the surface of the water before Pilot Baldwin could bring her to earth at the salt works. Following are the notes made by Miss Schaffer while in the Queen:

3:12 p. m.—We seem to be stationary although I find the bag drifting. We are now about 2000 feet above sea level. Below me I notice the balloon City of Oakland has some difficulty in rising.

LOOKS LIKE BRICK YARD. 3:15 p. m.—The City of Oakland rises. Three features stand out in the city below. The Oak and Chronicle buildings are the ruins of the city hall, the latter resembling a brickyard. I see the islands, 24 miles away. The City of Oakland is traveling fast and seems to be over the bay.

3:21 p. m.—Just sent a good luck note to the friends below. I cannot but be impressed with the wonderful beauty of the Pacific. I can now see the breakers. The other balloon looks like a soap bubble and the oil tanks look like little jars of jam. We are now about 5000 feet high. Mr. Diablo is hidden in clouds. Oakland appears to be a community of white houses. Apparently the balloon the City of Oakland is stationary at this writing. We are throwing out ballast by the handful. Captain Baldwin wants a smoke, but I have prevailed on him to postpone the pleasure.

SACRIFICE BALLAST. 3:47 p. m.—We are just over the bay, drifting southwesterly. Mt. Tamalpais has a mantle of white clouds. Threw out a bag of ballast.

4:30 p. m.—An explosion on shore made a vibration through the balloon. Ocean looks like marshy land and hills of Berkeley like crumpled velvet. The sun is shining behind the clouds and the balloon contracting; we begin to sink. The eardrums throw out flies into our faces, so rapidly do we drop. The gas bag is woefully shrunken. The City of Oakland is creeping also. She touches water. Thank heaven we win the race.

FIRST DRENCHING. I had to stop taking notes for a moment to steady myself as the balloon struck the bay. The waves washed over the basket and I am drenched. The bay is crossed and we begin to seek a landing place. Captain Baldwin pulled the rippling rope, but it broke in his hand. The valve rope also broke. We improvised an anchor, motorcycle harness and catches the anchor. We begin to descend. Making landing at 5:21 p. m. in the valley near Alvarado.

Miss Schaffer was taken to the home of Mrs. Harvey near where the Queen landed, where she remained until an automobile arrived from Alvarado, and Baldwin, after looking after his balloon, returned to San Francisco.

OVERCOME BY GAS.

There were two asphyxiations while the balloons were being filled with gas at the house of the Pacific Aero Club, 24th and Market streets, San Francisco, but neither was serious. The first was a technical one. By a strange coincidence M. Lauffe rescued Miss Miller from the gas of her balloon only to be rescued himself. He was unconscious condition at the time and after being rescued later by a physician. The second was a technical one. By a strange coincidence M. Lauffe rescued Miss Miller from the gas of her balloon only to be rescued himself. He was unconscious condition at the time and after being rescued later by a physician.

Although the City of Oakland is unofficially declared to be the winner of the race it is understood that the San Francisco Aero Club will fight a decision on a technicality. The new rules which governed the race there were two over which the flight will probably occur. The fourth one provides that "aeronauts may use rope or water anchor," and the fifth one provides that "the gas bag must constitute a landing." Pilot Mars holds that the fourth rule does not refer to landing, and dropping his rope into the water did not constitute a landing, while Baldwin can claim that both rules are meant to determine the landing.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Nov. 1.—A second blasting throughout the night in the mine of the Carbur Steel Company at Frankline, near here, where an explosion occurred last evening, did not increase the number of fatalities. Twelve men were killed outright, one dying and three seriously injured.

'Honeymoon Trail' at Macdonough Gay Galaxy of Hearty Laughs

MABEL MELVINE in "Honeymoon Trail" at Macdonough.

Heralded by a three months' successful run in San Francisco, "The Honeymoon Trail," the latest opera from the pen of Hough, Adams and Howard, opened at the Macdonough Theatre last night, playing its initial engagement in the city to a crowded house. The production is one of the best seen here in some time, and the chorus, while none of them are candidates for a beauty contest, is well trained.

The piece is elaborately staged, most of the scenes being laid here in California, and the story deals with the patients and guests of "Sleepy Hollow Rest Cure," a retreat for overworked business men, and those of "Liberty Hall," a divorce colony hotel. The plot has been treated in a farcical spirit, from which numerous complications arise. The carefully selected cast of well known players includes Bert Baker, Louis Kelsa, Maud Potter, Mabel Melvine, Arlene Polling, Frank Beresford, Margaret Lotus, the famous LaSalle brothers, and a chorus of forty.

A LAUGH-MAKER.

It is a play-whirl show of much frivolous music and paprikaed with something more than wit. There are a dozen or more frothing ensembles, and the whole performance moves with a verve and spirit that tingle the nerves and sweep you, laughing, on with it, and in addition has the crowning merit of remaining interesting until the final drop of the curtain.

Maud Potter, the chief comedienne of "The Honeymoon Trail," is possessed of one of the most pleasing personalities of any woman now before the footlights. Besides her ability as a comedienne she has a remarkably sweet soprano voice, and her singing of "When I Feel Like Loving" was one of the big hits of last night's performance.

The production is staged under the direction of Mort H. Singer and will continue tonight and tomorrow night.

RELIEF FUND DATA GOES TO THE MAYOR

Chairman Phelan's Statement Shows $393,104 Balance, but Appropriated

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1.—James D. Phelan, president of the San Francisco Relief and Red Cross Funds, has submitted to Mayor Taylor the financial report of the corporation, as certified by Lester, Herrick & Herrick, the accountants, who have audited the finances of the organization since the beginning of the relief work.

He points out in his report that the work of the corporation was practically closed May 2, 1909, when the balance on hand was specifically appropriated for the rehabilitation of local charities by agreement with the American National Red Cross in Washington.

The certificate of audit of Lester, Herrick & Herrick, which accompanies Chairman Phelan's report, reads:

"We certify that the following statement, showing receipts of $9,673,057.94, disbursements of $9,279,553.86 and a balance on hand, but specifically appropriated on May 29, 1909, of $393,104.28, together with the analyzing schedules, is a full and correct statement of the financial transactions as shown by the accounts, and, additionally, is true and in accordance with the facts."

BIG STEAMER IS STUCK IN MUD

President Goes Aground in Bay But Gets Off Alone When Tide Rises

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1.—After a buffet by a severe sou'wester which held it five hours late, the steamship President of the Pacific Coast Steamship Company's line added another thrill to an eventful voyage by ramming its nose into a mud flat off Black Point, in San Francisco bay, at 7.25 o'clock last evening.

After remaining stuck fast until 8:10 o'clock the big ship was able to pull itself off by its own engines and proceed to its slip at the Broadway wharf.

Just before she was floated several tugs went to its assistance, but the aid was declined by Captain Thomas, who was confident he could get off the shoal as soon as the tide began to come in.

On the President when it struck were 341 passengers, who were all below preparing to disembark. Few of these realized that the ship was aground and all excitement subsided when Captain Thomas assured inquirers that the President rested easily and there was no danger.

GIRL OF FIFTEEN MAY WED SEPTUAGENARIAN

OROVILLE, Nov. 1.—John Pinkney Ware, aged 70 years, a resident of Oroville, appeared before County Clerk Batchelder on Saturday and asked for a license to wed Cora May Burns, whose age was given by her mother as 15 years, but who did not look a day over 15. The girl was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Ella Raglin, who gave her consent to the marriage. Despite this fact Batchelder refused to grant the license, and was later upheld in his refusal by Superior Judge John A. Gray. It is probable that the custody of the girl may be taken from the mother and vested in Probation Officer J. A. Glenn.

RESENT JOHN D.'S 'HOOKWORM' FUND

Southern Bishop Stores Oil King—"South a Dumping Ground of Philanthropy"

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 1.—Regarding the $10,000 gift of John D. Rockefeller for the investigation and cure of the "hook worm" disease. Bishop Warren, candor of the Southern Methodist church, said yesterday:

"It is to be hoped that our people will not be taken in by Mr. Rockefeller's veritable fund and hook worm commission. The habit of singling out the South for all sorts of reforms, remedies and enlightenments is not for our benefit, and the too ready acceptance of these things on the part of some of our people is not to our credit. Mr. Rockefeller would take charge of both of our heads and our stomachs and purge our brains of ignorance and our hearts of bigotry."

DECLARES JAILS ARE UNSANITARY

Pastor Raps Oakland Prisons --Says Officials "Lament" But Don't Act

The Rev. Frank L. Goodspeed, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Fourteenth and Franklin streets, rapped the Oakland jails in his sermon before a large congregation last night, asserting that they are inadequate, unsanitary and not conducive to the reform of the prisoner. He added that a like condition exists practically in every part of the country.

The subject of the sermon was "The Treatment of the Criminal" and Dr. Goodspeed said:

"The prime consideration in the treatment of the criminal is his reformation. The enemy of social order must become a friend of the State. His sentence must be in mind the cure that is to be wrought in the man. Don't throw him to the human scrap heap—he may be reformed and re-entrusted into good natal. Let his prison be a school. Give him a fair sum for his work."

"The conditions of our jails need to be reformed and improved. Its ventilation is poor, the light insufficient and no proper segregation of the hopeful cases from those more hardened in crime."

OFFICIALS LAMENT.

The officials at the jail lament the sorry condition of things, and do their utmost for the comfort and cleanliness of their charges. The city officials are doing their best with the means at their disposal and have already accomplished much for the reformation of conditions. The blame must rest on the citizens, on the voters, who seem content to house their unfortunate fellow-men in quarters unsanitary and little conducive to their reformation."

"When the people of California become a God-fearing people, the great percentage of commitments to the State prisons will be lowered. Although we need courts, police and police reform in this State, the real cause of the trouble is the Californians are not so ready to relegate things. A great percentage of them never attend a church. Our churches are sparsely attended. California is a land that is called an enlightened people, but it is not. This civilization is nothing more than a veneer, through which the old of temptation, easily cast away," said Rev. Clinton Mason, pastor of Trinity Episcopal church, speaking in St. Philip's church at Friday today.

IMMENSE CARGOES OF LIQUOR IN PORT

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—As if it were that all America suffered from an epidemic of champagne, liquor and wine, there are six large ocean liners and small boats come within this port during the last three or four weeks preceding Christmas, laden with champagne, wines, brandy and liquor. It is three times as much as for liquor.

At midnight Saturday the duty on champagne imported into this port was $200,000. On other wines and liquors proportionately, because of the termination of a traffic agreement between this port and France, Switzerland and Belgium.

La Touraine of the French line, came nearest of any of the incoming vessels to the duty on champagne. She carried 1,000 cases in the evening, and her command, Captain Murmand, was taken off in a tug to his custom house where he presented affidavits to the effect that he had 1,000 cases of wine and liquor aboard for a total under the low duty. His papers were O. K., thus saving the importers nearly $20,000.

Fetters on champagne, other wines, brandy and other Continental importations affected probably will be raised throughout the country as a result of the new tariff changes.

CHURCH SERVICES FOR VAUDEVILLE THEATERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—In an effort to reach theatrical folk with the gospel the Church and Labor Department of the American Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church has started a movement by which it hopes ultimately to conduct religious services in many of the vaudeville theaters in this and other cities.

The first will be held on Wednesday night in the American Theater, as soon as the curtain falls after the last act. It will be a regular church service and all the actors and theatrical employees have been invited to attend. If the movement is a success in this instance it will be broadened to include other theaters.

GERMANS GATHER IN LUTHER'S HONOR

Great Assemblage at Auditorium Glorifies Memory of Reformer

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1.—Two thousand members of the German Lutheran churches of this city, Oakland, Alameda and Berkeley gathered at the Auditorium, Page and Fillmore streets, yesterday afternoon to commemorate the anniversary of the great Reformation and to honor the memory of Martin Luther. The spacious hall had been appropriately decorated for the occasion and hundreds came from across the bay to be present at the memorial service.

One of the features of the observation ceremonies was a choir of 150 voices, composed of members of the singing societies of the German Lutheran churches around the bay. The following institutions were represented: St. Paul's St. John's and Zion churches of San Francisco, the Immanuel Church of Alameda, the Zion and Trinity churches of Oakland and the Bethlehem church of Berkeley. Arranged upon the stage in the auditorium were the singing societies, an extremely pretty appearance. They were led by H. G. Roeder.

NEW SYSTEM ON UNION PACIFIC

Change in the Mechanical Control Based on Officer's Word

DENVER, Col., Nov. 1.—An innovation in the management of the Union Pacific Railroad, which has been tried successfully, becomes effective on lines of the system in Colorado today. Hereafter there will be no such positions as any division of the Union Pacific as master mechanic, division engineer, transmitter, traveling engineer and assistant division engineer.

Instead of subdivisions with the above titles, each division superintendent will have seven assistants, their titles being assistant superintendent and all most equally charged with the management of the division whenever called upon.

Major Charles H. Hine, United States Army (retired), is responsible for trying out the new plan. Julius Kruttschnitt, director of maintenance and way of the Harriman line, was attracted to Major Hine several years ago by a series of articles the latter wrote for the Railway Age-Guide, entitled "The Letters of a Railroad Superintendent to His Son."

Kruttschnitt conferred with Hine, who told him every department head and the superintendent should be like every captain in the army—competent to take command of a regiment at an instant. Kruttschnitt did the idea, tested it on the Omaha division for a year, and is now putting it into effect on the whole system.

GERMANS GATHER IN LUTHER'S HONOR

Great Assemblage at Auditorium Glorifies Memory of Reformer

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1.—Two thousand members of the German Lutheran churches of this city, Oakland, Alameda and Berkeley gathered at the Auditorium, Page and Fillmore streets, yesterday afternoon to commemorate the anniversary of the great Reformation and to honor the memory of Martin Luther. The spacious hall had been appropriately decorated for the occasion and hundreds came from across the bay to be present at the memorial service.

One of the features of the observation ceremonies was a choir of 150 voices, composed of members of the singing societies of the German Lutheran churches around the bay. The following institutions were represented: St. Paul's St. John's and Zion churches of San Francisco, the Immanuel Church of Alameda, the Zion and Trinity churches of Oakland and the Bethlehem church of Berkeley. Arranged upon the stage in the auditorium were the singing societies, an extremely pretty appearance. They were led by H. G. Roeder.

General Weston to Be Retired Shortly

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Major-General John F. Weston, U. S. A., now in command of the Department of California, will be placed on the retired list November 17 when he will reach the statutory age limit of 64 years.

General Weston formerly was commissary general of the army. He was born in Kentucky in 1845. He was only 15 years old at the outbreak of the first war, in which he served as a first lieutenant of the Fourth Kentucky Volunteer Cavalry. In 1868 he was honorably mustered out of the volunteer service as a major.

He entered the regular army in August, 1867, as second lieutenant of the Seventh Cavalry, which participated in the Indian wars under command of General Custer. General Weston was known to the Indians as "Yellow Head," because of his shock of golden hair.

In 1895 General Weston was promoted to the grade of major general and assigned to the command of the Philippine division. The climate of the Philippines did not agree with him, and after serving two years he was ordered home by his physicians. He has been in command of the Department of California since his return.

CONCERNING RATES

During the last twenty years one of the very few necessities which has DECREASED in price is GAS SERVICE. The GENERAL COST OF LIVING HAS NEARLY DOUBLED, but the gas consumer is paying less for the service we render than ever before, and he is getting better service.

It is fully as much to our interest to make the lowest possible rates as it is to yours.

Two principal factors have enabled the steady decrease in the prices of gas service. One is somewhat cheaper production brought about by invention and development, and the other is greatly INCREASED CONSUMPTION OF GAS.

Twenty years ago the gas range business was in its infancy. Today more than half the total commercial gas used is burned in the kitchen. Gas stoves did not become popular until gas service rates began to fall.

The more service we can sell the cheaper becomes the unit cost of production and distribution. We know far better than critics that the arduous pursuit of this policy is the only one that permits us to exist. We are very well satisfied to continue along these lines.

The cheaper we can offer service the more gas will be consumed, and the greater will become the stability of our business. No legislation or competition can make this any clearer or more imperative.

The problem of the gas manager is the same problem which the retail merchant is forever trying to solve—to increase the volume of his output by following the only certain rule to accomplish it; by decreasing the margin of profit per sale.

We know well that unless we can cover our territory and induce the majority of possible customers to buy our service, it will be only a question of time until a rival enters the field and takes the business we have failed to secure and our own besides.
